Michael Henke

Re:

Appoint Alternate members of the Planning Commission

The Planning Commission currently has two vacancies for alternate members on the Planning Commission. Staff noticed the vacancies on the City's website and in the Wasatch Wave for three weeks and received three applications. Mayor Johnson has reviewed those applications (please see attached) and will have brief meetings with the applicants before the City Council meeting on July 7, 2020. A recommendation will be made at the City Council meeting regarding which two applicants to appoint as alternate members of the Planning Commission. Please see the attached applications to review the applicant's experience and qualifications.

I love Midway and I want to take part in the planning process. I think there is much that should be preserved and I also believe growth if planned correctly can add to our community and not detract from it. I would like to be part of the conversation on what the future Midway will look like.
List any additional experiences, education, or training you have had that would help you in this postion:
I am not a professional planner, but in my profession I have scanned through planning codes in many communities around us and I think I have good common sense ideas that can benefit our community. I am definitely willing to study and learn more and put in the time and effort to do a great job on this commission.
grout job on the dominiosion.

List of Qualifications:

Growing up on a farm I had the opportunity to be involved in different kinds of building and land management projects. It was there that I had my first exposure to how city and county governments interact with landowners, and how both work together to shape how a city feels, interacts, and moves. In this time, I was able to help with planning and designing plots for a subdivision, and subsequently being part of the utility installation.

In addition to farm experience growing up, my uncles were contractors who commonly hired me to help them with projects on gas stations, houses, barns, and other developments. Through them, and time working summers between school semesters as an excavator, I was exposed to the planning and execution of different kinds of developments.

I think working with the planning commission would be a chance to provide service in local government and the community where I live. It would also allow me to help shape how our community develops.

My formal training is as a pharmacist and more especially as a pharmacy administrator. This may seem like an odd pairing with a planning commission, but pharmacy is one of the most highly regulated industries. As such it has provided years of study and experience in evaluating laws and regulations, as well as how they are interpreted and applied to a practice that significantly affects the lives of people in my community. To me this seems like a natural segue into participation in the planning commission.
