01. Meet Starr + Her Vision

I'm Starr. I moved to Midway nearly 20 years ago, drawn here by the same things that drew many of you—natural beauty, open land, and a true small-town feel. It reminded me of my childhood in Ephraim, Utah—and quickly felt like home.

I'm running for City Council to give back to the town I love and help it grow thoughtfully.

Warmly,

Why Starr for Midway City Council

Starr earned her master's degree in public administration from the University of Washington and built a career in mission-driven nonprofits focused on safety net services and public health. She's served on the city's traffic committee, helped revise the General Plan, and partnered with Preserve Midway to protect open space and rural charm. She's not a politician: she's a listener, a collaborator, a problem-solver, and a mom who wants to leave Midway better for future generations.

COMMUNITY DRIVEN LEADERSHIP

Starr leads by listening—deeply and often. She shows up, asks questions, and keeps residents informed.

SMART, MANAGED GROWTH

Growth is inevitable—but it shouldn't cost Midway what makes it special. Starr is committed to protecting open space, finding innovative ways to slow growth.

PRESERVE WHAT MAKES MIDWAY HOME

Starr will champion stewardship that protects Midway's heritage and heart.
