

Culture

The Rocky Mountain Carver Round Up preserves and elevates a timeless artistic tradition, inviting hundreds of woodcarvers to celebrate craftsmanship that enriches Midway's cultural identity.

Sharing Carving With Everyone

- Public Open Evenings
- Evening Classes
- Thursday Night Youth Classes
- BBQ
- Community Concert
- Carving Show

Community

This event brings locals, families, and visitors together, strengthening pride and creating meaningful shared experiences.

Economic Benefit

Tourism

75-80% attendees
com in from out of State

01

Shopping Local

Attendees are shopping at local shops

02

Eating Local

Two to Three meals
purchased at local restaurants

03

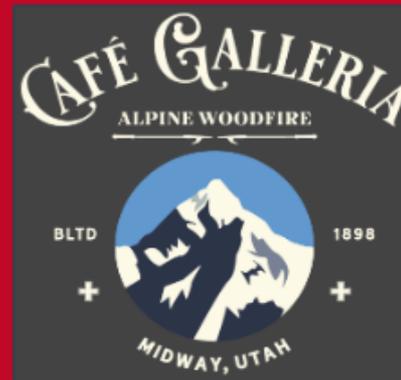

Staying Local

Over 450 room nights
booked in local hotels
and campgrounds

04

Craig's willingness to go above and beyond in bringing business to Midway—and then helping direct it to local shops—makes a huge difference for small businesses like ours.

Andy Jenkins
Owner Café Galleria

As a local business owner along the town square, I am happy to share my experiences and gratitude for the many events hosted at Midway Town Hall, particularly the Rocky Mountain Carver Roundup. Events like this help us thrive during the off-season, and the Carver Round Up truly embodies the spirit of our mountain community. Hundreds of artists gather to share and learn the craft of wood carving, creating a focused and inspiring environment. The quiet atmosphere, combined with the scent of fresh carved wood, transports visitors to a simpler time.

Sarah Farrell
Owner Hidden Peak Provision

Connections

Artists, residents, visitors, and businesses all benefit from the connections built through carving, learning, teaching, and supporting one another—connections that ripple through the entire community.

Rocky Mountain Carver Roundup

It's About the People and a Lifetime of Connections

Thank you

Mike Balzotti - Rocky Mountain Carver Roundup